Welcome

Meditation for Worship: Touch not my anointed ones, do my prophets no harm. - Psalm 105:15

“They are not distinguished by external dignity, numbers and power, as Rome sets forth the marks of her communion. They are in the midst of kingdoms, but not of them. They form usually the humblest portions of most communities, and yet they receive honor from God. Despised by the world, but unto God kings and priests, ordained and anointed to reign with Christ forever.” - W. Wilson

Welcome

Meditation for Worship: Behold, you delight in truth in the inward being, and you teach me wisdom in the secret heart.

"What I want thou hast promised to give." Repentance and faith are the gifts of God, and the awakened mind is conscious that they are so."

Welcome

Meditation for Worship: Let me hear what God the LORD will speak, for he will speak peace to his people, to his saints; but let them not turn back to folly. - Psalm 85:8

“Carnal men speak peace to themselves on account of some supposed goodness in themselves. But an upright heart will not be satisfied without hearing God speak peace to his heart by his Spirit. This peace brings joy, yet it is also a humbling, melting peace, which brings humiliation to the soul not to turn again to folly; but this never happens when men speak peace to themselves.” - John Berridge

Meditation for Worship: Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.
- Romans 5:1

“Before our justification by God on the basis of Christ’s work, we were not at peace with God. We actually hated God, hated others, and hated ourselves. We would have done away with God if we could. But having been justified by faith in Jesus Christ, this state of spiritual warfare has been changed to one of peace with God, others, and ourselves. This is the first great benefit of our justification.”
